

Clinical Faculty – Pegasus Health
Internal Medicine, Family Medicine

The University of Central Florida College of Medicine (UCFCOM) is seeking applications from outstanding primary care physicians at all ranks to serve as faculty on a team building this century's premier medical college. Pegasus Health is the soon-to-be-launched UCFCOM faculty clinical practice. The first mission of Pegasus Health is to establish a state of the art primary care practice that will provide outstanding patient care, create opportunities for medical student education and establish a foundation for clinical investigation at UCFCOM. Pegasus Health physicians will be active collaborators in the design and operation of this model clinical practice site. The guiding principles for this practice include patient-centered and collaborative multidisciplinary care, an emphasis on preventative medicine and wellness, a commitment to evidence-based medicine and measurement of the effectiveness of care and an orientation toward innovation and ever higher standards of quality and safety.

UCF has grown to be the nation's third-largest university and has demonstrated excellence in technology, science, and simulation. The College of Medicine has received preliminary accreditation by the LCME and admitted its charter class in 2009 and its second class in 2010. Ultimately, UCFCOM will have 120 students per class. The college will educate individuals to become exemplary physicians, leaders in medicine, scholars in science, innovators in medical technology and compassionate providers of health care.

Candidates must be board certified in an ABMS specialty; the exception is physicians who have just completed training in the last 2-5 years (length of time depends on specialty). Candidates must be eligible for licensure or licensed to practice in the State of Florida. Applicants should be exceptional clinicians who wish to practice, while spending a portion of their time conducting research or teaching medical students. Successful candidates will be founding clinicians in the College's faculty practice clinic, Pegasus Health.
