This retreat is presented by the Curriculum Transformation Advisory Group to the UCF College of Medicine community to share the work of the Steering Group for Outcomes (CTSG-O) and launch the Phase One Taskforce. This Steering Group of faculty, staff and students has completed the first step of the transformation process: developing a proposal for guiding principles, outcomes and milestones that will define the transformed curriculum.

The objectives of this retreat are to allow participants to work in small groups to give input into the final version of the curriculum outcomes and milestones. In addition, attendees will learn about a program-level approach to the curriculum and assessment of student performance; and how this approach will be applied by the Phase One taskforce. Participants will have an opportunity to meet Phase One Taskforce Members and learn about their work. Attendees will also discuss the major themes that have emerged from collecting input about the transformation process and curriculum from students, staff and faculty.
